

The web mobile application should look similar to our current iphone application, which is still under development. The iphone views in this mockup are based on the 10/18 build. JQTouch which is a plugin to JQuery will be the framework that used to create the web mobile app. Since JQTouch is a non-native framework, the iphone feature/functionality will not be exactly duplicated. However, JQTouch does provide components and objects which allows us to come pretty close.
